

October 25-28 2021 SuccessionMatching and Altium Wealth Management Group will be offering a free webinar summit; 'What's Next for Your Business' to business sellers and buyers across the country.

The past 18 months have been a disruptive time for many businesses. Some have seen troubling times, while others have seen impressive growth. Regardless of the outcome, we know that there is still a roller coaster of change ahead, and those looking to sell their businesses to transition or retire might feel uncertain about what it will take.

"COVID has changed the landscape of business succession across North America" comments Alison Anderson, CEO and Founder of SuccessionMatching.

"One of the surprises that came out of 2020 and the first half of 2021 was a strong uptick in the number of buyers who approached us ready to purchase a business."

"We want to make sure that business owners are in a good place to sell, and to know that just because 2020 and 2021 have been disruptive years, their plans for the future don't necessarily need to change."

This 4 day webinar summit has been historically hosted in only Canada, but is launching now for the first time in the US. It will gather some of America's top Succession Planning Professionals to divulge important information to help business owners, and buyers, navigate the succession landscape.

"Our main objective is to ensure our local small and medium sized businesses aren't forced to shut their doors, especially when a positive transition can occur," remarks Anderson.

"Only 8% of business owners actually have a succession plan in place, creating a huge barrier to transition. We aim to correct that by offering affordable advice on business transitions and succession planning."
